CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

Besides military personnel, the commissary has about fifty civilian employees. Except for flour, sugar, ersatz coffee, and oats, the reserves of the Commissary are very small.

3. The Central Auto Workshop of the Army

The Central Workshop of the Army is located in Budapest on Ezredes Street. The organization stems from an older one. The chief work of the shop is the mass repair of army vehicles. However, since the People's Democratic Army is as yet not motorized, the Central Workshop operates with few personnel. A large camp and another workshop are located in Mátyásföld.

4. Course for Intelligence Officers

The course lasts for one year. Its aim is the development of "D" officers. The number of auditors at the time was sixty. In the ranks of the students are found all grades from common soldier up to major. The course is given in the Kossuth Academy. The participants are placed on detached service for the course. All the participants are selected Communists.
